Elsie’s summary

This is a Leica M11-P in the M Grey Metal edition, mint and complete with box and papers. Across 9 sources, 67 used M11-P bodies are listed today, with a median ask of $8,320 and the middle half between $7,911 and $9,475. Condition moves M11-P asks by about $162 per grade ($R^2$ 0.07), and mint, like-new examples ask a median of $9,000. Special editions like the Grey Metal can ask more than the standard body, so the suggested price is a fair starting point, not a ceiling. Regional medians: US $8,938, Europe & UK $8,230, Asia-Pacific $8,159.

Serial and condition check

Serial: withheld in this sample. In a live report Elsie reads the serial from your photos and confirms it matches what you typed. Condition: no visible wear on the top plate, dials, grip or screen; the camera sits in its original box with papers. Sensor and shutter count can’t be judged from photos, so add the shutter count to your listing.

The M11-P market today

How to read this. Price vs condition is a least-squares regression of 35 graded listings (outliers beyond the 3rd–97th percentile removed); an R² of 0.07 means the grade explains only part of the spread: dealers grade differently, and box, extras, edition, region and seller also drive price. *Time on market: Red Dot Pulse began timing every listing on Nov 20, 2026. Live reports use measured days-to-sell from Dec 4; the curve here is an illustrative model of how a higher asking price lengthens the wait.
